His Mission

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Washington, April 22.—The Balfour Commission has arrived. It was received by Secretary of State Lansing and Sir Cecil Spring-Rice and received an ovation from the crowds. The city is decked with flags of the Allies.

London, April 23.—Official and unofficial America is showing the deepest appreciation of Mr. Balfour's visit. Very elaborate precautions are being taken to safeguard the mission.

The mission was escorted by cavalry through the streets of Washington to McVeagh Mansion, where Mr. Balfour will stay. A cavalry guard of honor will be in constant attendance.

Mr. Balfour is dining with President Wilson, at the White House, on the 23rd and with Secretary of State Lansing on the 24th, when the dinner will be followed by a reception. President Wilson is keeping the week free of engagements, in order to devote himself to his distinguished visitors.

Mr. Balfour has sent a message to Canada, paying a tribute to her magnificent achievements and saying: "I wish you to regard my mission to a neighboring State as your mission and also trust that a representative of Canada will join me in Washington."

An Abandoned Barge Becomes Big Fleet

Was All German Raiders Got,
But They Claim One Warship Torpedoed, Many Damaged

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, April 22.—The German official version of the Dover raid says that the German light forces advanced towards the mouth of the Thames and effectively fired 650 shots at close range into the Dover and Calais fortresses. An unguarded Dover out-post vessel was destroyed.

Not sighting the enemy on its return, portions of the forces turned back and received and encountered some destroyers. In sharp engagements, at short distances, one enemy vessel was torpedoed, while others came under our artillery fire and were heavily damaged, one probably being sunk.

A portion of our forces advanced towards the Thames, but met no enemy, only merchantmen. Prisoners were captured.

A note added by the British Admiralty denies that any British vessels were sunk, or even seriously damaged. The only British force which came in contact with the enemy consisted of two destroyer leaders. The engagement lasted for a few minutes and the remainder of the enemy escaped by flight. The merchantmen prisoners claimed were three of the crew of an abandoned barge.

Amsterdam, April 23.—The Maandagochtendblad states that 8 German destroyers left Zeebrugge, on Friday evening and the two which were sunk were of a very recent type, with four funnels. Two others were seriously damaged.

A number of wounded sailors were brought to Bruges on Saturday. Great vigilance and apparent anxiety prevails at Zeebrugge.

Dr. Marsh Scores Partial Victory In Libel Suit, When Two Defendants Apologise

Messrs. E. C. Pearce and Gordon Morris also Pay £500 To General Hospital; Hayley Morris, Fights On

It looked for a while like they were going to call the boys out of the trenches and declare peace in the British Supreme Court yesterday morning.

As ten o'clock, the hour for opening hostilities, approached the spacious courtroom began to fill rapidly. It seemed as if all the beauty and chivalry of Shanghai was intent on hearing the second instalment of the now celebrated libel suit brought by Dr. E. L. Marsh against Messrs. E. C. Pearce, Gordon Morris and Hayley Morris. Every seat was occupied and the rustling of costly silks, flashing of gay millinery, and exchanges of whispered railway gradually softened as the clock struck ten, until everything was in a state of hushed expectancy.

But it was to be no Night Before Waterloo affair. Ten o'clock came and nothing happened. Absolutely nothing. The 11 o'clock communique gave no hint of what was going forward but shortly thereafter it became bruited about that a truce had been declared and that Sir Haviland de Sausmarez, the Chief Judge, was presiding at a peace conference. At 11.30, Sir Haviland adjourned court until 2.30.

And at that hour, he took his place on the bench and announced that a partial peace had been achieved. Generals E. C. Pearce and Gordon Morris acknowledged defeat, signed a separate peace and agreed to pay a smacking indemnity of £500 to the General Hospital.

But not so General Hayley Morris. He declared for war to the bitter end. So all the pretty frocks—there were quite a lot of them—yesterday—were not wasted and all the talpans who were not in their offices could at least boast that they had had some compensation for lost business.

Following upon the peace conference Dr. Marsh underwent cross-examination and it drifted on till four o'clock with scarce a thrill. Then came a mild encounter between the Judge and Mr. Ellis, which caused a flutter in court. The Doctor had answered a number of questions as to the late Mr. Mackinnon's state of mind and Mr. Macleod, when it came to his turn again, lost no time in taking up this point. Mr. Ellis jumped up to say that he didn't mean to suggest Mr. Mackinnon was out of his mind, but only generally weak.

"I gathered that you did suggest it," said the Judge, with a frown. "Oh, no. You misunderstood me," pleaded the attorney, with emphasis. They said the same again, rather more heatedly and the ladies looked alarmed. A third time, almost viciously—and then it ended.

Mr. Ellis got to the real sore point, by asking if it wasn't reasonable to expect a patient's friends to ask for consultations and at that one had only to look round the court to see who were the friends.

The doctor fenced and made some clever parries, in which "reasonable" played a big part. The Judge ended it with the unanswered question—to the lawyer—"And suppose all the friends wanted different doctors?"

Asked if there were several of his patients that he heard of as commenting on the Morris letter, Dr. Marsh replied: "Not several. A great many!"

After the doctor, the usher called for Miss Thomlinson and up there bustled an energetic and capable looking little woman, having all the appearance of a nurse who nurses. Again the fashion sketch cannot go beyond a brown skirt, a pink silk sports coat and a more than medium-sized pink and black hat, decorated with flowers.

Miss Thomlinson said she heard Dr. Marsh ask Mr. Mackinnon if he would like Dr. Bolton called in consultation and the reply was: "No."

Mr. Ellis tried to twist her up on dates, but the little woman stuck to her point—it was six or seven. (Continued on Page 2)

DISBAND CHEKIANGSE YANG SHAN-TEH URGES

Would Substitute Northerners; Approval Unlikely, In View Of Possible Conflicts

(Reuter's Pacific Service to The China Press)

Peking, April 24.—The Military Governor of Chekiang, General Yang Shan-teh, in a lengthy memorandum, suggests the disbandment of all the Chekiang troops and to replace them with Northerners. The matter will be submitted to the Cabinet, but, in view of the frequent conflicts between provincial troops and those from other provinces, it is unlikely that the suggestion will meet with approval.

British Air-Ship Is Burnt; All Crew Lost

Runs Adrift When Engine-Power Fails; Destroyed By Hostile Aeroplanes

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, April 23.—The Admiralty has issued the following communique: A British air-ship which was patrolling the East Coast, on Saturday, has not returned. An air-ship was seen to descend in flames, in the Straits of Dover, at noon on Saturday.

Aeroplanes were seen in the vicinity shortly before and it is believed that hostile air-craft have destroyed the missing air-ship. Probably her engine-power failed and she drifted a long distance on the wind. It is assumed that all the crew are lost.

Hongkong Businessmen Clash With Governor

Chamber Unanimously Condemns His Opposition To Expulsion Of Germans

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Hongkong, April 24.—At a very large and very enthusiastic meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, today, the Hon. Mr. H. E. Pollock proposed and the Hon. Mr. C. E. Anton seconded a resolution for the exclusion of Germans from Hongkong for ten years after the conclusion of peace and, subsequently, their admission to the Colony under strict licence, which was passed with only two dissentients, Sir Paul Chater and Captain Carter.

Mr. S. H. Bodwell then proposed, Mr. C. Montague Ede seconded and the meeting passed unanimously a resolution that "the members of the Chamber of Commerce desire to take exception to the words used by His Excellency the Governor, at the meeting of the Legislative Council on the 19th, when speaking on a resolution which sought to convey to the Imperial authorities the carefully re-considered and unanimous opinion of the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce."

REGARD JAPANELECTION RESULTS AS PERSONAL VICTORY FOR TERAUCHI

Endorse His Whole Policy And
'Are Stern Rebuke To The Jingo Section'

MAJORITY IS NEAR FIFTY

Opposition Loses Eighty Seats, Of Which Government
Gains Fifty-One

(Reuter's Pacific Service to The China Press)

Tokio, April 24.—Marshal Count Terauchi, the Premier, has won a personal victory in the General Election, the returns of which are now almost complete. The Kenseikai, or Opposition Party, have lost eighty seats, of which the Seiyukai, or Government Party, have gained 51, the Kokumin-to, an Opposition Party, eight and the Independents 21.

This overwhelming overthrow of his opponents is regarded by well-informed persons as a great tribute to Count Terauchi and his policy, including his non-militaristic and friendly attitude towards China, the industrial development of Japan, his very loyal support of the Allies and, especially, his promotion of good relations with Russia. The result of the General Election is undoubtedly a victory for the very conservative element in Japan and a stern rebuke to the Jingoists.

The Diet meets on June 20, when Count Terauchi, it appears, will be assured of a majority of between forty and fifty.

The position of the Parties up to the present is: Seiyukai, 163; Kenseikai, 122; Kokumin-to, 36; Independents, 60, of whom at least 50 are expected to support the Government.

Tung Yi-lin's Arrest Effectuated in Tientsin

Wang Fu-wei, Returning From Japan, Faces Charge By Parliament Of Corruption

(Reuter's Pacific Service to The China Press)

Peking, April 24.—Mr. Hsu Shih-yung's resignation has not been accepted by the President, pending an investigation of the charges of corruption made against the Minister of Communications.

Mr. Tung Yi-lin has been arrested at Tientsin and will be transferred to Peking for trial.

Mr. Wang Fu-wei, the Vice-Minister of Communications, against whom Parliament brought a bill of impeachment, charging him with corruption, immediately upon his arrival in Peking, yesterday, had a lengthy interview with Mr. Hsu Shih-yung.

Empire March Written By Mr. H. F. Lawson Is Dedicated to George V.

Mr. H. F. Lawson, the clever local musician, who has already gained many compliments for his "S.V.C. March" and "The Boy Scouts' March," not to mention several other pieces, has now added to his compositions "The Empire March," which, by permission of Consul-General Sir Everard Fraser, has been dedicated to King George. All profits from its sale will be given to War Funds.

Once again, Mr. Lawson has succeeded in turning out a fine, vigorous and catchy composition, which is bound to appeal to music-lovers, whether they are masters, or merely those who hum and whistle. Empire Day is close at hand and it would not be a bad idea if places where they have music put Mr. Lawson's piece on their programs round about that time. In fact, why not all his pieces? Get them known and help the funds.

British In The Streets Of Kut

This picture, the first to be received showing the occupation of Kut-el-Amara by the forces of General Maude, has a great deal of sentimental interest to the British, for it was in this Mesopotamian town that General Townshend and his ill-fated expedition held out against the Turks until forced to surrender for lack of food and ammunition. General Maude has since recaptured the place, scattered the Turks and driven them in disorder beyond Bagdad, the famous city of the Caliphs, which he has also taken.

The entire Turkish force in this district now faces annihilation in a military "nut-cracker" being squeezed by General Maude and the Russian commanders in Persia, the latter now rapidly advancing to the Mesopotamian border. One Turkish force is fleeing before the British in the direction of Persia and the Russians, while another Turkish force is being driven in disorder before the Russians in Persia in the direction of Mesopotamia and the British.

Cold, Calculated Horrors Make Belgians' Hate Inextinguishable, Says Whitlock

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Washington, April 22.—The State Department has published the report of Mr. Brand Whitlock, late United States Minister to Belgium, on the Belgian deportations. He says that the Germans have lit an inextinguishable fire of hatred among the Belgians by cold, calculated deeds, so cruelly executed that even German soldiers wept.

DUMA RULES SUPREME, SOCIALIST LEADER SAYS

No Duality Of Power; Workers' Council Is Simply Constitutional Opposition

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Petrograd, April 23.—The situation as between the Provisional Government and the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates has been explained by M. Tcheldize, the President of the latter, in a speech delivered today. He declared emphatically that there was no duality of power.

His Council served simply as a sort of constitutional opposition, which is necessary as a check on every government. His statement was hailed with deafening applause.

M. Gutchkoff, the Minister of War, on his way to Rumania, received the delegates of the Russian armies operating in Rumania and exhorted them on the necessity of fighting to the last.

In Great Air-Battle Twenty-One German Planes Are Brought Down

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, April 23.—Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters, wiring today, says: After a steady, deliberate bombardment, for many hours, which culminated in the heaviest whirlwind of shells I have yet experienced on this front, the British, at dawn made a series of co-ordinating attacks, at various points on the front from St. Quentin to Lens. Generally, I hear that things are going well and our prisoners already run into four figures. The day is fine and clear.

Our air-men are taking a great hand in the combat and are endeavoring, with success, to limit enemy observation. Yesterday, they brought down six great kite-balloons.

Sir Douglas Haig reported this morning: We attacked this morning, on a wider front, on both banks of the River Scarpe. Fighting is proceeding. Our troops are making satisfactory progress.

Important Gains
During the night, we captured the remainder of the village of Trescault, southwards of the Bapaume to Cambrai road and gained possession of the greater part of Havrincourt Wood.

Sir Douglas Haig reported this evening: There has been heavy and continuous fighting, the whole day long, on both banks of the Scarpe and important positions have been gained. A marked feature of the operations was the frequency and violence of the German counter-attacks, in which very heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy.

We captured the village of Gavrelle and two and a half miles of defences southward of the village, as far as Roeux Cemetery. We fought our way forward on the right bank of the Scarpe, on a wide front, southward and eastward of Monchy-le-Preux and captured Guemape.

Over 1,000 Prisoners
We took considerably over a thousand and prisoners. We also made progress south-westward of Lens.

Great aerial activity prevailed on Sunday. Our air-craft were entirely successful. Six German aeroplanes were brought down and fifteen driven down.

Two of our machines attacked eight enemy machines, bringing down two and driving down a third. Our anti-aircraft guns shot down a fourth. We destroyed seven kite balloons. Four of our machines are missing.

Berlin Reports
(By wireless).—A German official communique reports: The British, on Sunday, penetrated our first line, north-westward of Lens, on a front of 500 meters. Our counter-attack drove them back. Fighting recommenced this morning, on a wide front.

A strong French attack, north-westward of La Ville-aux-Bois, broke down, with heavy loss.

We brought down eleven aeroplanes and set fire to four balloons.

The Bulgars repulsed a British attack in the region of Lake Dolman. A German official communique this evening reported: The new British assault in the Arras battlefield broke down, with heavy losses to the enemy.

Silence German Batteries Paris, April 23.—The official communique issued this afternoon reported: There were great reciprocal artillery actions, during the night, south of St. Quentin and between Soissons and Rheims. Our batteries effectively beat down a very violent enemy bombardment, east of Craonne, preparatory to an attack which did not occur.

Our artillery and machine-gun fire broke up an attack, yesterday evening, in the salient north-east of High Mount, in the Champagne. The enemy renewed their attempt during the night on the crests we hold in the Moronvillers Massif, where the struggle was very keen at certain points and resulted everywhere to our advantage.

Dr. Marsh Scores Partial Victory

but not fewer days, after Mr. Mackinnon came into the Nursing Home. It was now 4.15 and a second appeal to the Judge secured an adjournment till 10 this morning.

The Peace Terms

It was about 11.30 a.m. when the Chief Judge entered the Court. On taking his seat, he addressed the jurors as follows:—Gentlemen, I am sorry you have been detained in this way but I made certain suggestions to counsel engaged in the case this morning and it is quite possible that the result of those suggestions may be that you will be no further troubled in the case. But, naturally, they wished to discuss matters with their clients, so there has been this delay and there may be still further delay, so I propose to adjourn the case further until 2.30 p.m., and no doubt some decision will be taken by that time.

Afternoon Session

On the resumption in the afternoon, Mr. R. N. Macleod said:—My Lord, my learned friends, Mr. White Cooper and Mr. Master, and I have agreed on terms. We are agreed that those terms, which have been reduced to writing, be handed to your Lordship and your Lordship should read them and that neither of us should say any more.

His Lordship:—With regard to the other defendant?

Mr. Macleod:—I am afraid there is nothing to say, my Lord.

Mr. Ellis:—With regard to the defendant, Hayley Morris, we have not been in a position to arrive at any terms.

Terms of Settlement

"The defendants Edward Charles Pearce and Gordon Morris absolutely withdraw the libel complained of and sincerely apologise for its publication. They agree to pay the plaintiff's costs between solicitor and client occasioned by them on a scale to be fixed by the Judge, and also to pay the sum of five hundred pounds sterling to the Shanghai General Hospital."

"All imputations of malice are withdrawn on both sides."

"Having regard to this settlement, the plaintiff will ask leave to discontinue the action as against the defendants Edward Charles Pearce and Gordon Morris."

His Lordship concluded:—I at once, without any hesitation, grant that leave. You will still, gentlemen, have to inquire into the case as between plaintiff and the defendant, Hayley Morris, who was the author of this letter."

The Hayley Morris Case

The claim against Mr. Hayley Morris was then proceeded with.

Mr. Ellis opened with the cross-examination of Dr. Marsh, which lasted until 4.05 p.m. and thereafter

Miss Thomlinson, one of Mr. Mackinnon's nurses, also gave evidence, the afternoon session extending over two hours. The case was then adjourned until this morning.

In cross-examination by Mr. Ellis, Dr. Marsh said he attended Mr. Mackinnon for several months before the beginning of his final illness. About the middle of December Mackinnon was suffering from an affection of the jaw.

Q.—Were you aware Mr. Mackinnon had no relations in Shanghai?

A.—Yes, I understood so.

Q.—You also testified to the fact that he went to Foochow. While he was at Foochow, or shortly after, did you get a letter from anybody in Foochow, any medical man, with regard to his condition?

A.—Yes, through Mrs. Mackinnon. It was from a doctor in Foochow.

The letter was read in Court. It gave Mr. Mackinnon's condition when he landed at Foochow and the treatment given him. His temperature on arrival was 103; next day it went up to 104 and only once did it fall below 102.

Dr. Marsh was then cross-examined on the point of his telephonic communication with Mr. Gordon Morris, with regard to which he maintained the story told by him in his examination.

Cross-examined on the question of his conversation with Dr. Bolton, Dr. Marsh said the suggested consultation had been irregularly arranged and he could not fall in with it, until he had seen his patient. Witness did not remember saying that he did not consider a consultation with Dr. Bolton necessary. He could not have said that because he was arranging for his partners to see Mr. Mackinnon. He told Dr. Bolton something of what the patient was suffering from.

Q.—Did you use the words "abdominal chill?" A.—No. I would not use such an unscientific term as that.

Mr. Mackinnon was asked whether he would like to see witness' partners, definitely asked, before they were brought in. He agreed to their being brought in. He did not think that Hayley Morris telephoned him on January 3. Witness' conversations with Mrs. Hayley Morris were quite friendly.

Describing his conversation of January 7 with defendant, Dr. Marsh repeated that Mr. Morris spoke in a very peremptory manner. He had no hesitation in saying that.

Mr. Hayley Morris, when he rang up the second time, said his (Dr. Marsh's) conduct was disgraceful and most unprofessional.

Q.—What meaning did you attach to that? Did you think it referred to your previously ringing him off or your conduct as a medical man? A.—I did not put any particular view on it.

Witness said he recollected defendant saying he would write to the papers and do him (Dr. Marsh) all the damage he could; that he would wire to Mackinnon's father and force witness to a consultation.

Q.—That you have no doubt about?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you say it was not necessary to call in outside help as the disease was running its normal course. A.—No. I said nothing further than that the Chairman of the Council had received my report which had been confirmed by the Health Officer report. I then told Mr. Morris my patient did not wish to see Dr. Bolton and anything further he (defendant) wished to say should be communicated in writing.

Mr. Ellis then carried witness through the telephonic conversation as it was to be given by defendant, he said: Dr. Marsh denied having heard anything further than what he had stated in his examination and repeated that there was "a flow of language." He could not recollect that defendant said he had heard Mr. Mackinnon was semi-delirious.

At a later stage witness was questioned on his letter to Dr. Bolton in which he wrote that "the patient had asked him not to heed defendant's assumption of responsibility." He said he was first approached on this matter in his consulting room by Mr. Mackinnon in October of last year. It was a remark caused by a general desire not to have anybody interfere in the question of his health. In witness' experience he did not consider the request at all strange. The request was repeated several times. Witness knew Mr. Mackinnon had been worried by his friends. On his return from Foochow, Mr. Mackinnon's requests became very much stronger on the subject. Witness told Mr. Mackinnon he was suffering from typhoid when he got the second report from the Health Officer.

Dr. Marsh said he had no doubt Mr. Mackinnon was perfectly competent to answer his question with regard to a consultation when he (Dr. Marsh) put it to him. He had no doubt about it.

In answer to a question as to the wishes of friends to have a consultation, the witness said, he supposed friends had got their common anxieties about patients. Every friend would like to have his own doctor see the patient, if they took a reasonable view it was sometimes possible to have a consultation. In this case Mr. Mackinnon's friends evidently thought the way in which they insisted was reasonable.

Q.—Would you not think it was reasonable?

A.—If they had known the circumstances I do not think they ought to have considered their own wishes on the point any further.

Miss A. A. Thomlinson was then called. In answer to Mr. Macleod, she said she was one of the nurses who nursed Mr. Mackinnon in his last illness.

Q.—Do you remember being present on any occasion when Dr. Marsh came to see him?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you remember any occasion on which Dr. Marsh consulted his wishes with regard to a consultation?

A.—Yes.

Witness further said she did not remember the exact date of this conversation but it was probably about a week or so after Mr. Mackinnon entered the hospital. The name of the other doctor was mentioned. It was Dr. Bolton. Dr. Marsh asked Mr. Mackinnon if he wished the consultation and the latter replied: "No" and that he was perfectly satisfied. She also said she remembered quite clearly that Dr. Marsh stated to Mr. Mackinnon that Mr. Hayley Morris had suggested that Dr. Bolton be called in.

Q.—Was there anything in the nature of the suggestion by Dr. Marsh either in favor or against the consultation?

A.—No; neither way.

Q.—No attempt at persuasion?

A.—None at all.

Q.—And so far as you can judge, was Mr. Mackinnon in a fit state of mind to understand the import of the question?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And appreciate the importance of it?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you any doubt at all upon that point?

A.—None at all.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ellis, witness said that conversation took place about January 6 or 7.

The Court then adjourned until 10 a.m. today.

HOW CONSERVANCY OF HAI HO SAVED TIENSIN

Engineering Society Hears Paper By Mr. T. Pincione Describing The Work

The Engineering Society of China yesterday afternoon heard a paper by Mr. T. Pincione, Engineer-in-Chief of the Hai Ho Conservancy, entitled "Conservancy work on the Hai Ho river." Mr. Pincione was unable to be present and the paper was read by another member of the Society. The work done on this river in order to improve shipping facilities from the mouth up to Tientsin was described.

There are five tributaries feeding the Hai Ho and as the latter is the only outlet to the sea it was taxed to such an extent that frequent floods were the result, besides very serious silting.

Owing to no conservancy work having been done to improve the Hai Ho for some centuries, conditions finally got to such a state that in 1897 the Tientsin Chamber of Commerce became seriously alarmed and delegated Mr. A. de Sincle to report on the condition of affairs and suggest remedial measures. The proposals recommended in his subsequent report were carried out, but the Boxer trouble put a temporary stop to further progress of the work. The improvements consisted in making locks, draining works and cuttings and work has progressed ever since.

In 1905 it was found that the bar had silted up one and a half feet since H. M. S. Rambler's survey in 1902, leaving an average depth of only one foot, so work of deepening the bar by a system of raising was commenced, which was continued until a new dredger was put into commission to do this work in 1912. The raising operations resulted in a gain of from 3 to 4 ft. in depth over the original crossing and at the end of 1916 the increased average depth signalled was 9 ft.

During this time work on the channel also proceeded, in addition to the four cuttings which were made to shorten the course of the river and cause a higher range of tide at Tientsin.

The work has entailed heavy expenditures, but when it is realised that only 2 vessels with a draught of under 12 ft. arrived at Tientsin Bund in 1899 and that the number in 1916 was 585, of which 236 had a draught of over 12 ft., it shows what a huge improvement to trade, quite out of all proportion to the original cost, a wise outlay of capital can create.

At the present time vessels from Chefoo drawing more than 15 ft. of water can, in 20 hours, go up to Tientsin. The paper was illustrated with diagrams and there was an appendix showing progress of the works.

SHANGHAI GETS FIRST GLIMPSE OF AUTOPED

Given punctuality of shipment and a quick voyage across the Pacific, frequenters of Shanghai's busy thoroughfares will soon be treated to the strange sight of more or less well-known residents careering past them, standing on a little platform supported on two wheels, propelled by a sturdy little engine, which goes "tuff-tuff-tuff" just like a real motor cycle.

This machine—a novelty of novelties—is the Autoped, manufactured by the Autoped Company of America, which will very soon be placed on the market here. The first one to be seen in Shanghai made its appearance yesterday and attracted much attention.

The Autoped is simplicity itself. You "just step on and go." It consists of a platform 12 inches wide, having a pneumatic-tired wheel at either end. The forward wheel is equipped with a 1½ h.p. gasoline motor. It will travel at from 5 to 25 miles an hour and keep going for nearly 100 miles on a gallon of gasoline. America has taken to it with enthusiasm.

Premier Lloyd George Has Woman Secretary

MISS STEVENSON

Miss F. L. Stevenson, secretary to Premier Lloyd George, of Great Britain, has the distinction of being the only woman secretary to a Premier in the world today. Miss Stevenson is entrusted with many of the duties of state that rest upon the shoulders of Premier Lloyd George and is said to be greatly trusted by British statesmen.

distances, the Autoped is purposely built without a seat. This feature ensures the most easy, natural and graceful balance, the greatest ratio of safety. The foot platform is only a few inches from the ground. To start your Autoped, you simply step on, push the steering column forward, give a little push, at the same time turning the twist-of-the-wrist handle-grip control—and you're off. Think of the convenience of this machine for the early morning visit to the Race Course, the run down to Kiangwan, a speedy journey to the office—independent of the express tram service, the rambling ricksha, the lazy chauffeur and the somnolent mafo.

A shipment is due to arrive in the near future and further particulars may be looked for in our advertising columns at that time.

14 Evangelists Ordained At Last Session of Adventists

Asiatic Conference Also Pays Highest Tribute To Work of Other Mission Societies in Orient

Yesterday was the closing session of the Asiatic Division Conference of the Seventh-day Adventists and the President, Pastor J. E. Fulton, adjourned the meeting until the time of the next bi-annual session in 1919. The last two days of the session have been given largely to devotion and prayer for the up-building of mission work in Asiatic lands, especially in those places as yet unentered or where government restrictions are still placed on the freedom of the pioneer of the gospel.

Special invocation was also made in behalf of those in authority and responsibility in the United States, in view of the present crisis. Pastor W. T. Knox, Treasurer of the World Conference, who is a relative of former Secretary of State Philander C. Knox, speaking during the last session, stated that mission workers today in all lands are filling the place of a second John the Baptist in "making straight the paths" for the second advent of Christ. Quoting from a noted author regarding John, he said: "He stood fearless before earthly monarchs because he bowed and trembled before the King of Kings." The same spirit of fearlessness, stated the speaker, is the great need of missionaries today, particularly in view of the appalling conditions into which the world has been thrown the last three years. The minister of the gospel, realising the unlimited power which is behind him, and keeping humble and dependent upon that power, should speak in no uncertain voice.

Many old missionaries related the wonderful growth that had taken place before their eyes in mission work in the Orient, and contrasted present conditions with the days when they entered these lands at the risk of their lives.

Deep appreciation was expressed for the liberality with which church-members in Australia and the United States had stood by the mission work in lands where it has not yet attained to a self-supporting basis. Church-members in the United States and Australia during the past year have donated on an average over $10 gold per member for use in mission lands outside of these countries. It was expressed as the general conviction that the brethren in these lands, in spite of now being under war conditions, would donate even more liberally for the advancement of the work during the coming year.

The conference as a body also rendered the highest tribute to other mission societies working throughout the Orient in the interest of Christ's kingdom, recognising the great and noble work done by these societies, which in many instances pioneered the way long years ago amid the greatest hardship, suffering, and discouragement.

Special ordination service was held last evening, at which 14 tried and experienced evangelists received ordination to the gospel ministry. Of this number 4 are Chinese from the North China Conference. Prayer was specially offered for the safe return of the delegates over the long and in many cases perilous land and water routes to their homes and work. Nearly every vessel leaving Shanghai for the next week or two for other points in the Orient and for America is booked to carry delegates returning home from this conference, the largest and most memorable ever held by the Adventist body in the Far East.

Germans Panic-Struck When Hospital Ship Is Torpedoed

Fighting Madly for Places in Boats, Are Knocked Down By British Sailors; Many Lose Lives

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, April 23.—Members of the crew of the hospital-ship Lanfranc, interviewed, said that their first warning was the explosion of the torpedo at 8 o'clock in the evening, when they were in mid-Channel. The ship lurched, the stern sank rapidly till the name was submerged and then she sank slowly.

The German wounded on board were thrown into a panic by the explosion, the officers in most cases behaving disgracefully, breaking out of the saloon and leading the panic. They were the first to jump into the boats, shoving everybody aside and had to be restrained and in some cases knocked down.

When one of the small boats came alongside to rescue those on board, these German officers started cheering and yelling in German, thinking that it could only be a German vessel, but, realising their mistake, shouted in English: "We are English sailors! No Deutsche! Kanerats! Mercy!"

One boat was capsized, owing to the weight of the overcrowding Germans, who jumped into it without orders. Their struggles in the heavy sea were terrible. Other Germans, as the first rescuing vessel, approached, jumped and fell between the two ships and it was impossible to save them.

The torpedo fired by the German submarine struck the Lanfranc where there was a ward of German cot-cases and those who were not killed by the explosion were drowned, owing to the flooding of the seas.

The difference between the behavior of the wounded Germans and the wounded British Tommies was remarkable. The latter were very calm, making jokes and obeying orders very promptly. The Germans fell on their knees, pleading to be saved.

A German Brigadier-General on board remarked sadly to a British officer, after the explosion: "I do not like my country for this."

When the first survivors were on board a rescuing vessel, a German submarine fired another torpedo at the latter, but missed. The crew and officers of the Lanfranc worked without ceasing to bring up the wounded, both British and German.

The hospital-ship Donegal was attacked at 8 o'clock in the evening, close to the English coast and sank in half-an-hour. There was a crew of 70 on board, in addition to the wounded, most of whom were walking cases. All kept very calm and the crew would not leave till the wounded were in the life-boats.

Paris, April 23.—Referring to the rescue of the German wounded on board the British hospital-ship Lanfranc when she was torpedoed by a German submarine, the newspapers pay a tribute to what they characterize as the lofty and exemplary humanity of the British navy towards a faithless and lawless foe.

Obituary

Ven. Archdeacon E. H. Thomson

The funeral of the Venerable Archdeacon Elliot Heber Thomson, D.D., of the American Church Mission, who died at his home in Shanghai at 10 p.m. Monday night, will take place this afternoon, at 4 o'clock there will be a service at the Cathedral; the burial service following at Pansienjiao at 5 o'clock.

Deceased was the senior missionary in point of years and service and one of the oldest foreign residents of Shanghai. Born in Virginia eighty-three years ago, he came to China with the first Bishop Boone in 1855 and spent the whole of his ministry in Shanghai and the immediate neighborhood.

During the Civil War in America, Dr. Thomson was for a while the only foreign representative of his mission in Shanghai. Just after the war, in 1866, he was instrumental in beginning a medical work among the Chinese which has since developed into St. Luke's Hospital. Some years later he was appointed Archdeacon in charge of the stations in Shanghai and in nearby towns.

But though his work was largely evangelistic, Archdeacon Thomson was for many years in charge also of Duane Hall, one of the schools for boys which were later merged into St. John's University. He also did valuable literary work as a member of committees for Bible and Prayer Book translation.

A few years ago Archdeacon Thomson received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Washington and Lee University. During the later years of his life he was for some time Rector of the Church of Our Saviour and his closing years of service were fittingly spent as chaplain to St. Luke's Hospital, which he had founded so many years ago.

Archdeacon Thomson was a man greatly beloved and respected by Chinese and foreigners alike and he will long be held in affectionate remembrance by his many friends and fellow-workers of all denominations whose sympathies go out to his widow in Shanghai and to his three

Special Correspondence to The China Press

Kaifeng, April 21.—Under the inspiration of the Far Eastern Olympic Games to be held at Tokio in May a successful track meet has just been held at Kaifeng—the second one of her long history.

Ten local colleges and schools took part, Kaifeng Baptist College winning both first and second honors, the School of Mines taking third place. Four Baptist College men won for their Alma Mater the highest number of points, forty-three out of a possible hundred. The three best all-round men are to be sent free of cost to Tokio, a much coveted honor. The Board of Education of the Honan Province is to be commended for their enterprise in sending these men and in lending their hearty support to the whole undertaking which will make for great results in the future of athletics in the interior.

To Mr. R. H. Stanley more than to any one person is due the credit of working up and managing the whole event. As one of the local Y.M.C.A. secretaries he was the logical man to do the work and he did it skilfully and to the satisfaction of all concerned. He goes with the party of students to Tokio.

Mr. W. H. Pan, the Decathlon winner, and all round champion of the first Far Eastern Olympic meet, held in Manila, P. I., was selected yesterday on the Y.M.C.A. grounds to represent China in the shot put and at tennis. His distance with the 16 pound shot was 24 feet; the record being 35 feet 3 1/2 inches. He has also won several tennis championships in this country and, while at the University of Michigan, was on the college team.

Dr. Edward Kau, who will make the trip across as medical advisor to the delegates, is expected to be here today. He will also compete in the shot put.

Representatives from South China arrived here Monday. They are 46 strong and are making their headquarters at the Navy Y.M.C.A. A practice game in volleyball was staged on the Y.M.C.A. grounds and fans who saw it vote the team to be the best ever. The five Hongkong swimmers also displayed their art in the evening at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium and evoked much favorable comment.

The Chinese Y.M.C.A. will give the delegation a reception this afternoon at its own building and those who attend the affair will see the volleyball players and the swimmers in action.

The Shanghai athletes and the Southern delegates will take the Kasuga Maru, tomorrow, arriving at Kobe on the 29th and going thence by rail to Tokio. The affairs of the team will be cared for by the committee of management, including Chang Pong, Lei Ming-tak, the Consul-General at Yokohama, the representative appointed by President Li Yuan-hung and C. G. Hoh, team manager and secretary of committee.

The headquarters of the team will be at the Tokio Chinese Y. M. C. A. Chinese and foreign teachers and friends of the contestants will find accommodations near the headquarters. A white shirt with the national colors on the breast is the official uniform of the delegation, while teams may have special colors if they wish.

Besides Dr. Kau, Dr. C. A. Siler will have the care of the diet of the team.

Two Stars Not To Go
Lee Doo-sing, the Nanyang track star, who carried off four firsts last Saturday at the Olympic preliminaries and Chang Shao-an, another Nanyang athlete who broke the half mile record, will not be able to compete at the finals in Tokio in May, it was announced yesterday by Mr. J. H. Crocker, Honorary Secretary of the China delegation. Lee's father objected having him sent over, while Chang needs all his time for studies.

With the withdrawal of Lee and Chang, the East China team is not expected to score heavily. Track and field events will be more or less dependent on the North China team, which compares favorably with the Shanghai selection in the results made in Tientsin, April 20, while South China is expected to win the team work honors.

The Canton volleyball team is having daily practice with the Ching Chong School players. The Hongkong football team is keeping in trim by contests with Medhurst College and the Southern swimmers indulge in water sports twice a day at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium. The members have their headquarters at the Navy Y.M.C.A. reception this afternoon former Premier Tong Shao-yi will formally welcome the athletes as chairman of the executive committee of the Far Eastern Athletic Association and Mr. S. K. Tsao will speak on behalf of the Chinese Y.M.C.A. The Canton volleyball players will have an exhibition game with the Ching Chong team in the gymnasium at 4. The reception will begin at 4.45.

Fifty-two competitors with the Team Manager, C. G. Hoh, and the Medical Advisor, Dr. Edward Kau, who will also compete, and three representatives of the South China Athletic Association, 56 in all, will leave the Chinese Y.M.C.A. building at 11.30 o'clock in the morning of April 26, when the local Chinese Boy Scouts will escort them as guard of honor. They will march down to the Nippon Yusen Kaisha Wayside Wharf and the steamer Kasuga Maru will leave at 1.30 in the afternoon.

OLYMPIC ENTERTAINMENT

A large audience turned up at the Olympic Theater last night for the testimonial benefit to Prof. A. Papini and Prof. H. Montes. A variety entertainment had been provided that was well up to the Shanghai standard, although Mrs. Isherwood who was down for some songs and Mr. Carpi who was to have given an equilibristic act were both prevented from appearing by illness. There was a plentiful supply of other artists however. Miss Aileen Flaven took Mrs. Isherwood's place and proved most popular. Mr. Thompson's comedy act which opened the program put the audience in high good humor and Messrs. Silas and Warren in "Music, Mirch and Mimicry" carried everything before them.

The popular professors gave solos in both the first and second halves. Prof. Papini delighted with Berliot's Concert de Ballet and Gounod's Ave Maria. Prof. Montes gave a Spanish dance and the Danse Teige. Mr. Haynes was in splendid voice, as usual. Syria proved to be a dancer of no mean order. She was beautifully costumed and was the recipient of an encore and many flowers. Her part of the entertainment consisted of four classical dances arranged by Prof. Montes, to music by Adys arranged by Mr. Tolentino.

"WHY AM I ILL?"

AND
CAUSE?

HOW TO TELL.—Does every cold affect your back, and cause a feeling of chilliness, followed by disturbance of the kidney action? Does the use of spirits or tea or beer excite the kidneys? Are you easily worried and annoyed over trifles? Are the feet and hands cold? Circulation bad? Do the feet and legs swell? Is there a puffiness under the eyes? Do you have rheumatism, poor eyesight, headaches and backaches? Is there gravel, or any unnatural action of the kidneys?

If you have any of the above symptoms, your kidneys are either weak or diseased, and these symptoms are warning of more serious trouble to follow—Bright's Disease or Diabetes.

Whatever you do, whatever you think your disease is, look well to your kidneys at the first sign of anything wrong. Give them just the aid they require in Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and see how well and fit you feel, after even a few doses. Their effect is marvellous and lasting.

Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are a never-failing cure for all forms of kidney trouble. They instantly relieve the congested, overworked kidneys, and gradually bring them back to health. Their whole action is on the kidneys and bladder—not on the bowels—and by doing one thing only they do that one thing well.

IMPARTIAL AND PROGRESSIVE

SHANGHAI, APRIL 25, 1917

The New Russia

IN an interview, Mr. Kerenski, the Russian Minister of Justice, a Socialist, shows himself sensible, broadminded, thoughtful, thoroughly aware of the perplexities and perils that lie before his country.
He says that the workmen "want to work" and not to prolong the demonstration; that order is being restored in the army. "I am convinced," he adds in words encouraging to all the democracies now fighting for democracy, "the revolution will give an immense uplifting to the spirit of the troops and so shorten the war." He believes in an independent Poland, a conception that can be honestly entertained by democratic Russia.
One of the greatest blunders of the Tsars was their ill treatment, always with German instigation or complicity, of their Polish subjects.
So long as Russian officials got double pay for administering a disturbed Polish province, disturbances in Polish provinces were sure to occur.

To Finland, another monument of the falseness of imperial pledges, her old Constitution will be restored. Mr. Kerenski favors an autonomous Armenia under the protection of Russia. That so sorely tried country deserves peace and security at last. Mr. Kerenski says, rather euphemistically, that the autonomy of Armenia will greatly reduce friction between the various nationalities in the Caucasus by diverting the energies of the Armenians further afield.

Perhaps the most interesting view expressed by or attributed to Mr. Kerenski relates to Constantinople, which the other Entente Powers have publicly assigned to Russia. "Kerenski," the interviewer asserts, "strongly favors the internationalisation of Constantinople." Is this a merely personal opinion, or is it shared by the workmen, the industrial democracy that he represents? It is conceivable, perhaps it is natural, that in view of all the military, commercial, territorial, national, and dynastic ambitions and interests and hopes that cluster about Constantinople, the Russian workmen, content if Russia realises, at last, her secular dream of an unfrozen outlet to the sea, fear the wars of rivalry and conquest to which the possession of Byzantium might lead. On the other hand, it is the Holy City of the Muscovites, and are they likely to renounce it?

The moderation of this radical Minister is a good augury for the future of the new Russian Government which the United States, France, Great Britain and Italy have just recognised formally.
That prompt recognition was wise and fortunate. It was especially due from us, from an old democracy to a younger. It expresses officially the generous and sympathetic hopes and good wishes of the American people for an experiment on a great scale in popular government. There goes with it, revived and broadened, that old gratitude to and friendly feeling for Russia which was strong so long among Americans, which had a conspicuous reason in her attitude in the civil war, which was partly interrupted or made latent by the Manchurian adventure into which she went at the insidious urging of Germany, and by the results of bureaucratic anti-Semitism, likewise made in Germany.

If Americans felt good-will to Russia for support in critical times that was prompted by the interests of her autocracy, what must be their friendliness to the resurgent Russia of freedom, equality, and constitutional government? A renewal of the treaty denounced by President Taft will formally restore the "amity" of the two nations; but it is already restored. We are dealing now with representatives of the people. The day of civil and religious and racial inequality is done.

For more than fifty years Americans have watched the struggle between liberalism and reaction in Russia. The story of repression, exile, assassination, of nihilism and revolution, of futile and often misguided intellectual propaganda and action, has been painful. The best propagandists of democracy have been the Court, the bureaucracy, the police. So why, if rapidly since 1905 the brutality, corruption and incompetency of autocratic-bureaucratic government have penetrated the minds of the Russian people United by the pressure of war, they found themselves betrayed and solution. They have overthrown the soldiers and the traitors. Church army, peasants, workmen, the middle class, the better part of the nobility, the mass of Russians, have decided to govern themselves as a free people, and to carry to a prosperous end the war of freedom begun in 1914.

The splendid achievements of the Slav genius in music, art, and literature are far outdone by this conquest of freedom. It has made most Americans strong pro-Russians. It has made many of them, doubtful before, strong partisans of the Allies.
It has made their cause the cause of all European democracies. Great Britain, France, Italy, Russia, Portugal, Serbia, and the rest are all constitutional democracies, contending against the divine right houses of Hapsburg and Hohenzollern, autocracy masked under constitutional forms. Ministries responsible to the Emperor, not to Parliament. If constitutional government in Japan follows German forms, we are to remember that a long contention for Ministries responsible to the Diet has gone on, and that the opposition in the Diet to the Terauchi Cabinet, resulting the other day in the dissolution of the House and the prorogation of the House of Peers, turned on this question of responsible party government.

The negotiation of a new treaty of commerce and amity with Russia is important to both Governments. The trade relations of the two countries have been growing, and in the development of the almost boundless resources of Russia the United States has a potent opportunity.
The end of the regime of intolerance insures, of course, a treaty which will respect the rights of American Jews of Russian birth who visit their native country.

For American interests in Asia and the Pacific the change of government in Russia seems auspicious. It may be even more so if Mr. Kerenski's notion about Constantinople is not realised and the national ambition is satisfied in Europe.

BRYAN'S FALSE REASONING

The same logic that leads a mayor to keep people off the streets during times of riot would justify this country in keeping citizens of the United States off belligerent vessels.
—William J. Bryan.

And so in case of a riot the mayor sits down quietly, keeps all policemen in the stations, tells the rioters he does not propose to enforce law and order and that so far as he and the policemen are concerned, they can have full sway to murder and loot.
In the meantime, no citizen must go to his business and no market or milk wagons must move because they might be robbed by the unrestrained rioters and the drivers murdered!—

Russia's Twilight Of The Gods; Two World Ideals At Conflict

What the Triumph of Democracy in the Slav Empire Means for the War and the Future of Civilisation

The latest mails from New York and London are filled with the Russian Revolution; every writer of prominence appears to be trying to put on paper an expression of the real significance of that great landmark in world history. None has treated the subject with more ability of eloquence than A. G. Gardiner, whose article, "The Twilight of the Gods," we reproduce.

By A. G. Gardiner

There is spring in the air and there is spring in the souls of men.
A dark shadow has been lifted from the earth, and a thrilling message has gone forth into every land. It is as though we have entered into a new world and are filled with the great breath of freedom. Not since the Bastille fell has there been an event so full of splendid significance for men as the mighty happenings of this week in Petrograd. Russia is free. She has broken her chains, has overthrown the tyranny that has kept her soul imprisoned for centuries, has come out into the light of things and has taken her place beside the free peoples of the earth.
She has plucked the first fruits of the war, and much as we may hate to admit that this hideous surgery is necessary for the birth of freedom we cannot deny that no price is too high for so glorious a gain.

The Great Betrayal
The hosts of brave Russians whose bones litter the soil of their country from the Carpathians to the Pinsk Marshes have not died in vain. They were betrayed by the cruel tyranny that sent them to their death unarmed. They were left without weapons in their hands to be slaughtered by an enemy with whom their rulers were in secret sympathy. While they were dying on the field the traitors in power were conspiring for their defeat and for the overthrow of the cause for which they were giving their lives in simple faith and loyalty.

While they were being moved down by the German artillery, the Government of Sturmer was countermanding orders in this country for arms to put in their empty hands. While they were facing the enemy without they were being stabbed from behind by those who had their fate in their hands. One clique of pro-Germans felt only to be succeeded by another clique still more noxious. One intrigue with Germany was no sooner exposed in the Duma, than another was afoot.
Occasionally a Minister was hanged, and occasionally an honest man emerged to power, as in the case of Alexieff and Shuvaloff, but the dark forces that centered around the Tsarina and Rasputin always triumphed in the end. Sheheg-lovitoff, the instrument of the first peace plot with Germany, re-appeared last autumn as the President of the Council; Sturmer, the promoter of the second plot, was no sooner driven out of the Premiership by Miliukoff's sensational exposure in the Duma than he emerged as the principal Court official and the power behind the Foreign Office.

Meanwhile Protopopoff was waxing all powerful. He had played the sham role of a Liberal, but even before he joined Sturmer's Government as Minister of the Interior he had been engaged at Stockholm in an intrigue with the German embassy Warburg. He set himself deliberately to make a revolution in the interests of the pro-German.
He organised artificial hunger, he suppressed the Council of the Zemstvos, he sought to drive the people to desperation by imprisoning the leaders of the Working Men's Committee.
He wanted a revolution which would enable him to suppress the Duma, set the Army against the people, stamp out the Liberal movement, and pave the way for a separate peace with Germany.

The Final Phase

The whole issue turned upon who made the revolution—the Government or the nation. Had the people been goaded into taking the initiative, the dark forces might still have won; but the warning of M.
Miliukoff kept the nation in hand and compelled the Government to take the offensive against the Duma.
Had the Duma consented to its suppression all would have been lost.
The golden moment would have passed. But the refusal to be suppressed gave the signal to the nation and the revolt of the Guards turned the current of revolution against the enemy and brought the Army out on the side of the Duma and the people. With that combination, and with Brusiloff, Ruzsky and Alexieff, the most popular General in the field, in sympathy with the revolution, the victor was assured. There may be reactions from so swift a triumph, cross currents which may complicate the smooth course of events. As I write there come rumors which are disquieting and which suggest that the perils are not all passed. But the great fact is accomplished and if the Duma, the nation, and the Army are firm behind the new Government of Prince Lvov, who represents all that is best in the cause of Russian freedom, there is no reason to fear the morrow.

What It Means

It is natural that we should think of this vast event first in connection with its bearing on the war.
From that point of view it is the greatest victory that has yet fallen to the Allies. The potentialities of Russia in this war have been enormous, but they have been unrealised potentialities. The nation has had its heart in the cause, but its arms have been tied and its strength has been paralysed. "There are only twenty-five people in Russia who want Germany to win," said an eminent Russian not long ago, "but those twenty-five are at the top."

They are at the top no longer.
During two years they have done their worst. They have sought to break the spirit of the nation by unger. They have sacrificed hundreds and tens of thousands and hundreds of thousands of Russians to the enemy. They have clogged the machine of war with every artifice at the command of treachery.
They have been at war, not with Germany but with the Russian people, not with the military despotism of the Kaiser but with the hunger of the people for liberty and free institutions. And in the end they have failed. They have been driven from power and their creatures are under lock and key.

The Effect in Germany

And now the nation, cleansed and purified at the head, confronts the German enemy for the first time with a united front and with the confidence that it is not being betrayed by the "dark forces" at home. The material effect will be great. The organised famine will step by step with the war. For Russia has been torn between the two ideals—the nation fighting a war of emancipation, the dark forces at the top fighting to preserve the old gods of despotism and militarism on their throne. The people have stood for the ideals of the Allies, but their rulers have stood for the ideal of the enemy. And it is because Russia has appeared officially before the world as the representative of the ancient darkness that the issue of the war has seemed unclear and obscure. The obscurity is dissipated. The issue stands out now clear to all eyes. It is the issue of whether peoples shall be bond or free, self governing or enslaved, and on that issue Russia stands today with her face turned towards the light, enrolled among the great family of democratic peoples who are resolved to make a clean sweep of despotism throughout the world.

A World Set Free
The full significance of the event can be realised by reminding ourselves of the peril that has now been finally removed. That peril was that at the close of the war we might find despotism, still triumphant in Germany, seeking an alliance with despotism still triumphant in Russia, and bringing the organising genius of Prussia to operate upon the vast potentialities of the Russian nation. What hope of peace would there have been for a world menaced by such a formidable combination conceived in the interests of tyranny? Democracy would still have lived on sufferance, under the shadow of the despot's sword and the agonies and sacrifices of these days would have been borne in vain.

But that danger vanishes with a free Russia. There can be no compromise between Liberalism and despotism. Henceforth Russia is ranged on the side of the Liberal Powers of Western Europe and America, and may we not add of China also? She has won freedom for herself, but she enlarged the boundaries of freedom for the whole world and has given a new assurance that liberty shall possess the earth.
The twilight of the gods has come indeed. There remains only one throne where the ancient idol is still elevated. Today Hohenzollernism stands alone in all the world, a solitary reminiscence of a creed outworn and of pretensions that are an insult to the intelligence and menace to an ordered and peaceful human society. It will not stand long. The German people will win their freedom as the Russian people have done, and when the last despot is in the dust we shall be able to proclaim "a world set free."

the Russian terror would be let loose upon them.

The war has shown how unreal that alarm was, how little the might of Germany had to fear from an aggressive Russia; but the influence of that alarm upon the mind of the German people is common knowledge. The terror caused in Germany in the first weeks of the war by the invasion of East Prussia was the measure of that alarm. It has largely faded away before the evidence of the inefficiency of Russia as a warlike instrument, and it will vanish altogether in the presence of Russia as a democratic State.

German Discontents
The effect of the revolution on Socialist opinion in Germany will be irresistible. There is nothing so infectious as the spirit of freedom, and the example of Russia will give impetus to the discontents in Germany. Only the other week a pacifist Socialist was returned for Potsdam, the Windsor of the Hohen-zollerns, and the popular indignation at the refusal of the junkers to make any concessions in the cause of political freedom is widespread and increasing. It has been fanned by the recent declaration of Bethmann-Hollweg that even the monstrous three class franchise of Prussia must be maintained till after the war, and it will be blown into flame by the wind from Russia. The German people have been accustomed to regard their neighbors as, politically, centuries behind them. To find themselves suddenly outstripped in the race for freedom, to see a nation which they have looked upon as backward and inferior sweeping away the whole fabric of autocracy in the midst of the war, will be an inspiration which should have a profound effect upon the internal situation of Germany, and upon the attitude of the people towards Russia and also towards the despotism at home. The cause of the people all over the world is one, and the spark kindled in Russia should light bonfires in Germany as well.

Two Ideals

And it is this community of interest between the democracies which underlies the hostilities of the battlefield that makes the revolution so rich in promise for the future.
This war, in its final analysis, is not a war between this group of countries and that. It is a war of ideals.
It is a war to decide whether liberty or tyranny shall govern the earth.
It is because that is the real conflict that we have seen the amazing internal struggle proceeding in Russia step by step with the war. For
two ideals—the nation fighting a
at the top fighting to preserve the
old gods of despotism and militarism
on their throne. The people have
stood for the ideals of the Allies,
ideal of the enemy. And it is because Russia has appeared officially
of the ancient darkness that the
and obscure. The obscurity is dissipated. The issue stands out now clear to all eyes. It is the issue of
with her face turned towards the
light, enrolled among the great
family of democratic peoples who
are resolved to make a clean sweep
of despotism throughout the world.

can be realised by reminding our-
that at the close of the war we
might find despotism, still trium-
alliance with despotism still triumphant in Russia, and bringing the
organising genius of Prussia to
operate upon the vast potentialities
of the Russian nation. What hope
a world menaced by such a formid-
able combination conceived in the interests of tyranny? Democracy
would still have lived on sufferance,
sword and the agonies and sacrifices
of these days would have been borne
in vain.

But that danger vanishes with a free Russia. There can be no compromise between Liberalism and
despotism. Henceforth Russia is
ranged on the side of the Liberal Powers of Western Europe and
America, and may we not add of
world and has given a new assurance
that liberty shall possess the earth.
The twilight of the gods has come
throne where the ancient idol is still
elevated. Today Hohenzollernism
stands alone in all the world, a solitary reminiscence of a creed outworn
and of pretensions that are an in-
to an ordered and peaceful human
freedom as the Russian people have
done, and when the last despot is

THE "MASS-SIGMA" Racket

Nett $22.00, with Press

This racket is the only one which is really scientifically constructed.
It is so made that no useless weight is left in the wedge part of the racket, which part, in ordinary rackets, is much wider than is necessary for the strain put on the racket by the strokes.

The weight gained in this way from the middle part of the racket is divided in two. Half of it is left in the head of the racket, to make it stronger, and half is put into the handle, so as to maintain a perfect balance.

The advantages of a racket so constructed are numerous:

The frame is less liable to break.

It can be more often restringed.

It will not go out of form.

It is less liable to warp if not kept in press.

Its aspect is lighter and more elegant than that of any other racket.

"Coal Oil Johnny" And His End

Contrary to an impression quite general in this generation, the "get-rich-quick" period in American history did not begin yesterday. It was on with great vigor in '49, when men, in California and Nevada, went to bed paupers and got up millionaires; it was on in the days when Western farms and swamps were being metamorphosed, overnight, into crowded cities; it was on with immense force in gold-boasting and railroad-wrecking days on Wall Street; it fairly bubbled and gushed when the plain people of Venango County, Pennsylvania, began to "strike" oil, and to realize upon their strikes. Rockefeller, Payne, Archbold, Rogers, and the rest had not appeared in the petroleum field. It was too early for combination or monopoly.

William McClintock and his wife, in 1857, owned and occupied a rather hopeless tract of land which, by courtesy in Venango County, was called a farm. There were but two in the family, however, and they succeeded in inducing the reluctant soil to yield more than they needed. Being a philanthropic couple, they decided to adopt a child from the poor farm. They actually adopted two children, a boy named John W. Steele, and his sister.

At about this time, the farmers along certain of the streams in Venango County discovered that an oily substance floated on the water. They were largely an ignorant and a superstitious people. When the streams settled into little pools the people secured the oil by spreading blankets or wooden cloths over the water. These they wrung out, bottling the oil and using it for medicine. One day there came into the neighborhood of the "oil springs" a man who could see farther than the others. His name was Edwin L. Drake. Obtaining some financial support, and persuading Mrs. McClintock, then alone, to let him drill in a corner of her farm, he soon had derricks erected all over the place, was pumping oil, and was paying the owner of the farm $15 for every other barrel of oil produced. Mrs. McClintock took in money so fast that she found it necessary to buy a safe in which to keep it. Her husband had named the adopted son in his will. She confirmed this. Neither, however, took the precaution to protect the adopted daughter.

The heir waited impatiently for his majority. By this time a great fortune had piled up. When he came into it one of his first acts was to burn some $5 bills as "lighters." A $5 bill was the smallest unit of currency he would recognize. He paid $5 for a shoeshine, for a shave, for a newspaper. He bought suits of clothes for his friends. He pinned $100 bills on his clothes and paraded through the oil towns. He was displeased with his treatment in a hotel, bought it, and put in his own manager. He attended a Negro minstrel performance and presented one of the "end men" with a magnificent diamond. Was it Duprez or Benedict's, or Skiff and Gaylord's or "Happy Cal" Wagner's minstrels whom he financed for a whole season? It was one of them, and he got his recompense by marching in procession with the troupe through the streets of the towns in which it performed. Ready money, or money from the regular revenue of the oil wells on the McClintock farm was not coming in as fast as he could use it, so he sold the property for a round $1,000,000 in cash. This he squandered right and left with a prodigality that eclipsed his previous efforts. One of his caprices was the giving of cash to hackmen.

He went to New York and spent $10,000 a day on Broadway for sixty days. He was surrounded and followed by people who flattered him and preyed upon his generosity. He married before his fortune came. Later he neglected his wife. When he became penniless she forgave him. The last phase in the story of "Coal Oil Johnny" was told recently by the Kansas City Star, and is, perhaps, the most satisfying. He went West when "busted" and drove a stage in Nebraska at $25 a month. Later he was employed by his own son, a railroad station agent in that State, to wheel trunks and other baggage. Later still, it was rumored that a considerable sum of money which he had overlooked had been saved for him. With his wife, at all events, he returned to Pennsylvania, and settled down quietly and happily on a farm.

In 1886, "I never interviewed anybody, except Sir Samuel Baker and a ship-wrecked mariner who had strange notions on the subject of cannibalism. In my time this business had not yet been imported into British journalism. But for feebleness of initiative I might have gone down in has ever yet had the hardhood to ask science of interviewing. I have seen two Emperors under fire, and witnessed the surrender of the third as prisoner of war. Why did I refrain from confronting Kaiser Wilhelm as he stood by the churchyard wall on the day of Gravelotte, and insisting on knowing his emotions as French shells burst among his soldiers? ... What an effect was mixed when absurd scruples of decency restrained me from challenging him!"

so on. It is, moreover, in the matter of pronunciation, free from the difficulties experienced by the tomato. No one, so far as can be ascertained, has ever yet had the hardhood to ask for a "po-tah-to."

Has it come to the point that a donation party may be necessary to the rehabilitation of the White House? New rugs, draperies, furniture, tableware, kitchen utensils, and miscellaneous essentials for comfortable house-keeping are said to be badly needed. In the Executive Mansion, as a result of the failure of Congress, at its last session, to pass the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill containing an item of $50,000 for the upkeep of the establishment. A little matter of $8,000 worth of new China, according to the superintendent of buildings, is particularly required. An out thing "shower" by popular subscription, would not only be a pretty compliment to the President and Mrs. Wilson, but a fitting rebuke to those gentlemen in Congress who retard and obstruct public business.

Most popular things in the process of time acquire popular names, and it is a great tribute to the potato that it has acquired a name. Officially, of course, not to say correctly, it is always a "potato"; but colloquially it is often, on occasion, designated a pratie, a tattie, a spud, a murrphy, and

All Over The World

This sort of thing could only happen in Ireland. In a certain house, in Monaghan, there was a large store of "Orange" guns. These guns had been collected for the arming of the Carson forces, in the days before the war. When the Sinn Fein rebellion broke out, the Sinn Feiners let slip their intention of descending on this house, and appropriating the illegal armory. Thereupon, with rightful indignation, the owner of the house notified the police to at once send a force to protect his guns, and prevent the rebels from taking them away. It is said that he was most indignant because the police, being a mere handful, declined to proceed to his aid. Neither did the Sinn Feiners come.

Whatever doubts the President of the United States may have had with respect to his authority to decree the arming of merchant ships, any doubt on his part as to whether the people of the country are with him in the German situation must have been completely dissipated. This phase of the matter is only another reminder that, whatever else the policy of "watchful waiting" may or may not achieve, it has been proved to have marvelous possibilities as a means of clarifying and solidifying national opinion.

The amazing fact may hardly be credited, but while cinemas, theaters, and pastry cookshops are being closed in France for patriotic reasons, no restrictions are placed on the cabarets. The necessity for economizing coal is the chief reason for the partial closing of the pastry cooks and the places of amusement, but it takes coal to warm a cabaret, and a public house is a harmful place, while a pastry cook's shop is not. Delegations to M. Poincare, press articles, public meetings, everything is being done to impress the Government with the necessity for putting down alcohol, but still this amazing inertia continues. "If such a republican government, long live the Tsar, say it!" exclaimed an irrefragable Frenchman.

Like a footnote to the great page of war that is being written in Europe comes Costa Rica's complete yet bloodless, and, on the whole, rather orderly revolution. Government "with consent of the governed," it seems, may at times involve the turning out of the Governor. Yet Costa Rica's handling of the matter somehow recalls that comic opera character, of a generation or more ago, who did something or other "so politely that 'twas music to the ear'."

The modern journalistic invention known as "interviewing" had no attractions for Archibald Forbes, the famous war correspondent. "I belong to the dark and decent ages," he wrote to 199,421 lbs. against an estimate of of the Estates and is attributed to a modified system of tapping, heavy wintering, thinning out of 5,439 tap-to sickness, increased number of wet days on which tapping was interfered

NOTICE

Fixed Price of Natural Ice

IT is a matter of common knowledge that the supply of natural ice is dependent on the temperature of the winter months. Last winter, although very cold weather was experienced, the water in creeks and rivers was very low, and although our ice store was built near a creek, very little ice, except that mixed with mud, was obtainable there. Thus, ice was obtained with difficulty and at a much higher cost.

At a meeting of the Ice Guild, which was held some time ago, it was decided, for the above reason, that during 1917, the price of natural ice must be fixed at $0.50 per 100 lbs. This price does not give us any extra profit, it merely covers us against loss.
